nights in New York, he was greeted by this question : "What does she play in ?" When ncicault went to Montreal he didn't averge $300 per performance. This shows what Contreal is. Young Sothern, however, has been playing at the Academy of Music to very large receipts, and, like other pretty actors, has been "taken up" socially. "The Highest Bidder" itself has also been greatly commended. Some of Sothern's success may be due to the fact that his father was a great favorite in Montreal. Next week the company returns to the States and opens at the Hollis Street Theatre, Boston. Sothern remains on his tour until May, when he returns to the Lyceum Theatre, taking the place of the regular stock company. There is a new play in view for him, a comedy that was written for his father, although "The Highest Bidder" does not show symptoms of readiness for shelving. This being the first attraction sent from the Lyceum Theatre by Mr. Frohman, its success has been a source of great satisfaction to that gentleman, "The Great Pink Pearl" and "Editha's Burglar," given at that house, will shortly be presented in Boston, with Gillette as the star. very large receipts, and, like other pretty Sweatnam, Billy Rice and Barney Fagan's Sweatnam, Billy Rice and Barney Fagan's "progressive" minstrels, now playing at Niblo's Garden, have not met with a very conspicuous degree of success there, although the company is a large one, and includes a goodly number of minstrel favorites. The fact, however, that it takes time to win New York's favor—in minstrelsy at any any rate—is demonstrated. William Foote, who was the "projector" of the Haverley Mastodon Minstrels, and who was engaged as manager of the company, left the organization a few weeks ago.

Miss Estelle Clayton has written a play, and it is to be presented at a special matines at the Union Square Theatre very shortly, by arrangement with Manager J. M. Hill. The matines will be for the benefit of Miss Sara Jewett. Miss Clayton claims that her play is entirely original, and some people who have read it were greatly impressed with its situations. As the performance is for the benefit of a sister artist, it is expected that a strong east will volunteer service and give Miss Clayton's play a good opportunity. Miss Clayton has very small feet, as those who saw her in her barefooted rôle remember. It is now demonstrated that she has a very big head.

"Hoodman Blind" has proved so successful this season that the management intend taking it out for another tour next year. Mr. De Belleville, who is now playing the leading part, may be "starred" by the "Hoodman Blind" management in a French romantic play.

George Knight closes his engagement in New York on Saturday night. His performance of "Rudolph" is acknowledged to be artistic, but it has not met with the success which was hoped for it. When an actor declares that he made an artistic success, it always means that he has made a financial failure. Knight was extremely fortunate with a farce comedy called "Over the Garden Wall," and he thought he could successfully enter the field of legitimate comedy. At any rate he intends touring the principal cities with "Rudolph."

was held to answer. Judge Hornblower fixed the bonds so that they would aggregate $8,000. The last examination was also speedly concluded and the defendant retired to her room in the Receiving Hospital.

The order to show cause why Clara, a two-year-old child of McDonald, jr., and Clara Belle should remain in her mother's custody came up yestercay in the Seperior Court. In his affidavit McDonald set out that there is a divorce suit pending between himself and Clara Belle: that Clara G. Is the issue of the marriage; that his wife was arrested for an attempt to murder his father; that ane was arrested on five charges of lorgery and held in $5,000 bail on each charge, and is confined in the city prison through her insulity to procure bail; that the persons confined therein are noisy and turbulent and that the health of the child may be seriously affected if she is to remain in prison, and that Rev. Montgomery Hoge, an Episcopal clergyman of high standing, was willing and a proper person to take care of the child. The Court was asked to make an order to that effect. Judge Coffey sked where the child was. Counsel of the affiant replied that she was in charge of a nurse at Mrs. McDonald's house.

Judge Coffey asked if the temporary custody of the child at that place was astisfactory, and counsel of the child at that place was astisfactory.

Coffey asked where the child was. Counsel of the affant replied that she was in charge of a nurse at Mrs. McDonald's house.

Judge Coffey asked if the temporary custody of the child at that place was satisfactory, and counsel replied that it was. Judge Coffey was intormed that the nurse was selected by the mother. 'Well, the selection appears to give satisfaction all round, and I will continue the case for one week, 'said the Judge. As the investigation proceeds, facts are divulged showing that swaim got away with noward of $100,000, of which $40,000 has been recovered by the McDonalds.

Detectives made an interesting discovery this afternoon while searching Seneca Swaim's trunks. Beneath a quantity of female apparel they found a large envelope containing deeds of property made by Clara Belle's will, in her own hadwriting, in which, after bequeating all real and personal property to her little daughter, and, in case the daughter should die, to Swaim, it says: 'Lastly, I nominate and appoint Seneca Augustas Swaim executor of this, my last will and testament, without bonds, and I hereby revoke all former wills made by me."

Besides the will there was a deed in which Mrs. McDonald conveyed to her lover title to her elevant Lake Tanoe cottage in Eldorado County, presented to her by her husband. In another document ashe gave to Swaim her horse, buggy, robe, harness and whilp. There was also a bill of sale to him of all to her by her husband. In another document she gave to Swaim her horse, buggy, robe, harness and whip. There was also a bill of sale to him of all the furniture in her former residence on Suiter street. The police will probably prefer another charge against Swaim on these documents. Clara Belle was removed to more comfortable quarters in the county jail this afternoon. She has been unable so far to procure ball.

A BASEBALL CLUB TO BE SOLD.

The Cincinnati Franchise and Contracts to be Sold by Order of Court.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 17 .- Unusual interest is now centering in the future of the Cincinnati Baseball Team from the fact that it is to be sold under an order of Court soon to satisfy an indebtedness of $81,500. It is expected the sale will attract much attention, and it will no doubt be the leading event in ba'l circles this winter.

The total capital stock of the club originally con sisted of forty shares, whose par value was $1,000, though it is claimed that but a very small part of this sum was paid up. These shares were all held by George Herancourt, who at the expiration of his term as City Treasurer in 1887 was found to be short in his account $74,000. Hauck, the big brewer, a relative of Herancourt's mother, came to the bondsmen's relief in consideration of Herancourt's turning over a large smount of collateral, including the forty shares of baseball stock, and paid off the shortage. In February, 1886, Hauck, by agreement with Herancourt, became the purchaser of this stock in consideration of a credit of $5,000 on Herancourt's indebtedness to him and later sold one-third of the stock to the present President of the club, Aaron Stern. Among other of Herancourt's collaterals was the Cincinnati oysier and Sah concern. On this Hauck had a chattel mortgage. When this concern failed Mr. Hauck of course seized the effects. Among Herancourt's creditors was the cysternouse of Mallory & Co., of Baltimore. In March, 1886, that concern brought suit to have Mr. Hauck declared trustee of the baseball stock for the benefit of all of Herancourt's creditors, charging that the saie of the baseball stock to Hauck was made for an insufficient consideration. this sum was paid up. These shares were all held for an insufficient consideration.

The Court held that the consideration was insufficient, and has now not only ordered sale of the stock, but directs that Hauck shall account for all profits accreding to the cibe since Pebruary, 1884. A decree for the sale has been drawn, but not entered, some points being under discussion between counsel, but it will be made public to-morrow. Unless Hauck stops the proceedings by filing a supersedeus bond in the Supreme Court the sale will go on.

go on.
Other debts of Herancourt make the total 881, 500. As to the value of the baseball stock opinions differ. Its profits during the past season under Stera's management will have to show a pretty regnd sum. The clao has many first-class players their contract and is rated here as worth. with franchise and players, $100,000.

Parson Anderson's Reprehensible Antics

[London (Ky.) Special to the Courier Journal.]
J. M. Anderson, a Presbyterian preacher, has been painting some portions of Owsley county a lurid hue lately. It seems that Anderson has been paying devoted attention to Miss Lizzie Wilson. paying devoted attention to Miss Lizzie Wilson. Anderson's suit progressed favorably, but the young lady's parents objected to her marrying for a year, and promised their blessing at the expiration of that time. Anderson was very much enraged at this, but norsed his wrath and commenced a series of persecutions against the worthy couple that for pure, unadditerated meanness could hardly be equalled. He first drove a nail through the hock of one of Wilson's beat horses, which had to be shot. Next, he empticd coal-oil into his well and ruined the water. Then he warned the old man to leave the country on pensity of death. This was done by cutting letters from a book and pasting them on a sheet of baper to form the necessary words. The old man became very much alarmed, as he had no clue to the perpetrator, and actually employed Amilerson among others to guard his house. He was in a constant state of terror and was afraid to leave his home.

Finally several days massed without any startling occurrences, so he ventured down to his forge one morning and started up a fire. As he stepped back to the handle of his bellows, a terrific explosion lifted the whole business out into the road, knocking him down and stunning him for several minutes. This was the last straw, and his neighbors commenced an active lavestigation that resulted in Anderson's hurried departure for parts unknown. A piece of wrapping paper was found near the shop, with some writing on it, that was proved to be Anderson's. With this ciue it was soon found where he had purchased the dynamite cartridge. He got wind of the affair in some way and lost notime in making himself scarce. The last Grand Jury indicted him, and a reward is offered for his capture. Anderson's suit progressed favorably, but the

CONDEMNED BY 527 VOTES.

AN OVERWHELMING MAJORITY IN FAVOR OF M. WILSON'S PROSECUTION.

Only Three of His Colleagues in the Chan ber of Deputies Raise Their Hands in His Behalf-The Prefect of Police is Superseded-The Minister of Justice and Public Prosecutor Resign.

Copyright, 1887, by The Press Publishing Company (New York World).

[SPECIAL CABLE DESPATCH TO THE WORLD.] Panis, Nov. 17. -The motion to criminally pros cute M. Wilson was passed this evening in the Chamber of Deputies, to which he belongs, by vote of 527 to 3. M. Mazeau, the Minister of Justice, and M. Goron, the Public Prosecutor, there upon placed their resignations in the hands of President Grevy, who accepted them. M. Wilson appears before the Parliamentary Commission of Investigation to-morrow. The Radical members will call upon M. Grevy in a body, and ask him to resign the Presidency.

This has been a day of tremendous excitement, far exceeding in its way anything that has been seen here for years. The question of the President of the Republic, the question of the Ministry, the question of M. Wilson, of the Prefact of Police and of M. Goron, each one sufficient in itself to create, a lively stir were all discussed with the utmost warmth, not only in the labbles of the Chamber of Deputies, but in every place of public resort. No one could give an opinion as to what would happen. In the Lower House several interpellations, possibly resulting in the defeat of the Cabinet, were confidently expected. Then every one was asking if a decided attempt would be made to force M. Grevy's hand. A Presidential and a Mininterial crisis at one and the same moment were regarded anything but unlikely. The animation with which every incident of the Wilson affair was discussed beggars all attempt at description. It was considered almost a foregone conclusion that the House would sanction the prosecution, but conjectures were made as to what would be the attitude of the Ministry. After M. Floquet had taken his place in the Presidential chair M. Rouvier, M. Clamenceau and M. Lockroy stepped up in turn to confer with him. M. Jules Ferry was to be seen conversing with M. Rouvier, and there was a busy hum until M. Floquet stood up and announced that he had received from the President of the Council of Ministers a request for permission to prosecute M. Wilson. The question was sub mitted to the House and almost unanimously voted. So far so good. It was immediately understood that the Ministry had thrown M. Wilson over

The crowd which had gathered outside increase and could almost be counted by thousands. There was a strong force of police, and men hurried hither and thither commenting on the strange situation. When the sitting was resumed at 4.30, the diplomatic box was as full as could be, that of the President of the Republic being untenanted throughout the afternoon. It was known that a committee composed exclusively of Republicans had been unanimous in approving of the prosecution, and when M. Achard, the reporteur of the committee, mounted the tribune to read his report, the excitement was at its height. The report in itself was very brief, but it contained a document draw up and signed by the Procureur-Gaueral giving a detailed account of the substitution of M. Wilson's letters. The Procureur-Général pointed out the interest M. Wilson had in getting rid of these compromising papers. He showed how M. Wilson had declared the substituted letters to be authentic and genuine, how Mme. Limousin had denied his assertion, and how the watermark had borne eloquent witness against him. The public prosecutor, therefore, asked for permission to bring M. Wilson to trial. After M. Achard had resumed his seat Floquet asked if the discussion should begin at once. "Yes!" was the cry raised from every corner of the House. But for a few moments no one came forward. Then M. Goblet, late Prime Minister, ascended the tribune, and in a few words expressed his opinion that the case did not warrant such step. M. Wilson had been to blame, but he had been guilty of no crime, and he for one would not vote for his prosecution. There was another pause, and then M. Millerand, a young Republican member, took up the running. Public onscience, he declared, had been wounded by this law. This principle seemed to have been set at naught, but the Republican party must show that it was to be maintained. It was a question of its own credit, and he would vote for the prosecution.

M. Floquet put the question promptly to the House. The votes were taken and counted in ten ninutes, and amid breathless silence the President announced that 527 members had voted for and only hree against the prosecution. The result of the voting produced another sensation. No one could have ventured to predict that the Chamber would, to all intents and purposes, pronounce unanimously in favor of M. Wilson's prosecution. The Cabinet, which was expected to put in a word for the Elysée, had held aloof. What will M. Grévy say? was the one question which every one asked, first in lobbles and then outside. For the sitting had immediately broken up, and eager groups had collected to discuss the situation. It was considered impossible that M. Grévy could persist in remaining at the Elvado.

M. Wilson moved the last of his personal effects from the Elysée Palace to his new house to-day. met him this afternoon. He seemed quite unconcerned, and was calmly smoking a oigarette.

M. de Fallieres, the Minister of the Interior, has demanded the resignation of M. Bourgeois, an official of the Department of the Interior, and a man of undoubted integrity, has been appointed in his

A Sunpplug-Turtle in Her Stemach. CHICAGO, Nov. 17. - Miss Rendau, a French maiden, nineteen years old, who resided on Forquer street, was buried on Wednesday. Her death was unexpected. Although the young lady had been subject to violent spasms and fits of vomiting for many days, no doctor was able to discover the cause of her death. On the day before her death she was seized with a very violent paroxysm. There was a choking sensation, and finally there was a choking sensation, and finally there was forced from her stomach a live young anappingturtic with a shell as large as a silver half dollar. Dr. Hutchinson said the patient became unconscious and almost immediately begun to swell up in her limbs like one afficted with the dropsy. She never railled. The doctor has the turtle in alcohol. It is a perfect specimen of its kind, and it is believed that it grew from a germ swallowed in water from Lake Michigan.

Makes Them Knit Their Brows [From the Louisville Courter-Journal.]
The President of a knitting company has deTHE PRICE OF COAL THIS WINTER.

Ratireads Advance the Cost of Transport tion-What a Dealer Says.

There is but little chance of a reduction in the price of coal, notwithstanding the fact that the coal men said that when the quantity of coal now being shipped to the West was brought to the seaboard the increased supply here would lessen the cost to the consumer. Ten ratiroads have given notice that they will charge 25 cents more a ton than heretofore, and this operates to keep the price up. The price of coal delivered here from the mines is increased over that of last year, the figures for the different kinds being as follows broken coal, $3.80 to $4.75 per ton; last year, $3.50 to $4.15; egg coal, $4.15 to $5.40; last year, $5.65 to $4.15; stove coal, $4.25 to $5.40: last year, $4.05 to $4.50; nut coal, $4.10 to $5; last year, $3.65 to $3.85; pes coal, $2.65 to $3.25; last year, $2.10 to $2.30.

pea coal, $2.65 to $3.25; last year, $2.10 to $2.50. The range in prices is due to the different mines from which the fuel is taken.

"About this time each year," said one of the small dealers in coal yesterday, "we expect to hear of trouble at the mines, of lack of transportation on the railroads, of the prospects of the canals freezing, &a., all of which is going to make coal very dear during the coming whiter, and dealers like myseif, who cannot ordinarily purchase more than a single boatload, are obliged to pay a trifle higher. The dealers with large stocks on hand, and who have contracted for several boatloads, do what they can to give currency to these rumors of a prospective rise in price, so as to induce such of their customers as ensually purchase a year's supply at one time to hasten their orders, and by this means the stock in the yards is reduced and there is room for that in boat which is expected, and the dealer thus avoids paying demurrage for the boat. The fact is, as stated in The World last Sunday, that ordinary stove coal is from 75 cents to $1 a ton higher than it was during the summer, or than it was last year at this time; but I see no reason for believing that it will-go any nigher during the winter. This rise in price checks sales to some extent, and men who would have ordered, say ten tons, will only order one or two tons, preferring to take the chance of the future market, and this tends to prevent any scarcity and prevents any rise in price.

"As to the very poor people, those who or-"As to the very poor people, those who or-marily cannot afford to purchase more than a to prevent any scarcity and prevents any rise in price.

"As to the very poor people, those who ordinarily cannot afford to purchase more than a bushel or a pail at one time pay very much more than the current rate, and the price per pail does not vary more than a cent or two the year round. The price at present is nine cents per pail, and possibly on the strength of the reports in the papers of a probable coal scarcity these small dealers may advance the price to ten cents per pail. Now, as there are from 106 to 110 pails in a ton, you will see that this advance of one cent per pail will much more than cover any rise that there will probably be in the wholesale price. These small dealers are scattered thickly all through the east side of the city and in some localities on the west side. They have their coal in cellars and seldom have more than two or three tons on hand at a time, and in very many cases they contract with a large dealer to sell them coal for a certain price during the year, giving them just what they have room for in their blins. All the corner groceries also sell coal in this manner, and to the very poor the difference per pail will not vary to any appreciable extent. A scare, if I may call it so, nurts dealers like myself more than any others, because we who have but little room in our yards, and but limited capital, can't buy more than a bostload and have to pay an increased price, while we can only charge the same rate as is charged by the large retailers, who have big stocks in their yards and who have contracted with the companies for future supplies. I do not expect to see the retail price go above $6 for ordinary or $7 for the best qualities during the coming winter. Even if it should go, say, a dollar a ton, above these figures it cannot make more coning winter. Even if it should go, say, a dollar a ton, above these figures it cannot make more conlines, so the large majority of families do not burn more than fay or as far and they are the ones, in my opinion, who are spreading these re

THREE MEN KILLED BY A WHALE,

Desperate Fight Between a Boat's Crew and a Monster Finback.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.] steamer Lizzie N., Capt. West, which has been en gaged in the finback whale fishery on the eastern coast this season, on Oct. 6, when about fifteen miles east-southeast from Seguin Island, off the coast of Maine, saw a large lone whale of that species and attempted its capture. A boat was owered and manned by Capt. West, his mate and four seamen. Capt. West, with a large, heavy whale gun in which was an explosive bomb lance, took the breach of the boat while the mate steered. Upon approaching the whale it was seen that he would be an ugly customer to deal with as he showed no inclination to run, but kept slowly milling around, evidently waiting to be attacked. When the boat was near enough to warrant a shot Capt. West fired the gun, but as the sea was rough the motion of the boat destroyed the accuracy of the aim. The whale was badly wounded, but not in any vital part. The whale then made for the boat, and in passing under it struck it with his flukes, throwing it some thirty feet into the air with its crew. As the boat descended the whale again struck it with his tail and completely demolished the boat and killed one of the crew, Jacob Klook, cutting him completely in two. The whale then commenced to bits and strike with his tail at the pieces of the boat, killing two more men, Neal Olsen and Caris. Johnson, who were supporting themselves on pieces of the wreck. Capt. West, the mate and the other men were safely taken aboard the steamer and another boat was lowered took the breach of the boat while the mate steered.

the mate and the other men were safely taken aboard the steamer and another boat was lowered to capture the monster.

Then the whale attacked the steamer. By a quick turn of the rudder the steamer cleared him by a few feet. This occurred a second time, and the swell which was created by the whale's fall back into the water knocked all on board off their feet. By throwing over an immense cask, at which the whale, thinking it was the ship, kept bucking away, the captain was enabled to get a shot with the bomb lance, and finally the whale was killed. When the whale was brought ashore, R. F. Pierce, of Chicago, bought him and will exhibit him through the West. A large car to transfer him has been built at an expense of $4,000.

ARREST OF A FLORIDA LAWYER, Benjamin C. Tunison, Formerly in Practic in New York and Jersey City.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 17.—Benjamin C. Tunison, a practicing attorney here, was arrested this evening on a charge of securing money from the Drew Hardware Company under false pre-tenses. Tunison has been building a house, and he purchased his supplies of them. On Oot. 81 he gave them a draft on his father, Rev. Wm. Tunison, of Orange, N. J., for $183.85. On Nov. 8 he went into their store, took a letter from his pocket and stated that his father had written him that the draft was paid. Thereupon, after deducting about 18 whice he owed, they gave him the balance, $125. The draft was returned yesterday dishonored, with no explanation.

A warrant was issued for his arrest to-day, and

A warrant was issued for his arrest to-day, and he was taken just as he stepped on the ferry-boat to go out of town. He expressed great indignation at the arrest, and said he could prove by letters at his home that all was perfectly square. He waived examination before the Justice, and as he asked time to secure this evidence, the trial was postponed till saturday. Tunison came here a year ago and lives at Chaseville, a suburb six miles out. He claims to have practised law all his life in New York and Jersey City—in New York with Judge Gardiner in the Equitable Building, and in Jersey City at No. 31 Montgomery street. His conduct while here has been all right so far as known, and there is great surprise expressed at this episode.

The Queen's Servants Dressed in "Kilts." [From the Lincoin (Neh.) Journal.] The Queen's fancy for the Highiand dress has brought it into the highest fashion. As soon as she roes up to Balmoral every servant is at once put in kills. As for the royal princes, they are extremely fond of the Highland costume, and even that round-faced Teuton, Prince Henry of Battenberg, comes out as a bare-legged Highlander. They all wear the Stuart tartan. The Queen always goes to Baimoral for the 26th of August (the Prince consort's birthday) and remains until she goes to Windsor for Christmas. Often she returns in the horing before going to Osborne. For once she and her children and grandchildren are agreed—that Balmoral is the pleasantest if not the grandest of all the royal residences of Great Britain. The Queen has a beautiful dairy, supplied by Ayrahire cattle, of which she is very proud. There are numerous comfortable stone contages on the estate, and the Queen's tenants are very well satisfied with their holdings. The village of Crathle is just outside of the park gate, and is thrifty as well as picturesque. The Queen goes to '' Kirk " and takes a cap of tea at the '' manse " with the clergyman's wife. fond of the Highland costume, and even that

BLAINE ON THE ELECTIONS.

HE FEELS THE RECENT RESULT IN NEW YORK YERY KEENLY.

The Maine Man Has Not Abandoned Hope for the Republican Party Yet-Another Chapter in the Potestad Romance-Jay Gould Disappoints the Paris Brokers-Bernhardt's New Play, "La Tosca."

Copyright, 1887, by The Press Publishing Company (Fee Fork World),

[SPECIAL CABLE DESPATCH TO THE WORLD.] PARIS, Nov. 17. -Ex-Gov. Baldwin, of Michigan s here for a few days. He will leave next week for Nice and proceed thence to winter in Egypt. Ex-Gov. Baldwin was present at Dr. Evans's reception to Mr. Blaine the other night. He seems to think that Mr. Blaine feels the result of the recent elections in New York very keenly. Mr. Biaine, nowever, has not shown any visible signs of cha grin, and although he is not communicative on the subject, does not seem to have abandoned hope for the Republican party.

Mr. Sheldon, of Brooklyn, has also been here for some time. Mr. Sheldon, who claims to have spoken to Mr. Blaine on the subject of the recent elections, says that he feels the defeat in Nev York, and that he is doubtful of Republican vic tory in 1988. John K. Ally has confirmed this tatement in private conversation. Mr. Blaine, however, seems perfectly serene, and does not appear to trouble himself much about politics.

Another chapter has been added to the romantic history of Mme. de Potestad, whose strange marriage to the dying Marquis last year, in Washing ton, created such a sensation. Mme. de Potesta was a Miss Wright, who had married Mr. Bratton. from whom, after fiving unhapply with him, she at length separated. Mr. Bratton disappeared mysteriously and has never since been heard of. Mrs. Bratton obtained a divorce on the plea of desertion. One child was born of the union. A rich and titled relative of Mr. Bratton recently died, and title and money are inherited by the little son of Mme. de Potestad. Mme. de Potestad and her mother, Mrs. Wright, are living very quietly in a cottage in Brittany this winter.

Mr. Jay Gould is here at the Hotel Bristol. He vill rema in but a few days. He was invited to Dr. Evans's reception, but did not go. He has kept very quiet and has not appeared on the Bourse, to the great disappointment of the Parisian brokers. Saturday next will be the famous first night, when Sarah Bernhardt produces '' La Tosca, ' Sar-dou's new play, at the Theatre Porte Saint Martin. On the same night the first production of "La Souris" will be given at the Comedie Française. Mr. William Tilden, of New York, and Mr. Che teau and family, of St. Louis, are among the new American arrivals here.

LABOR TO HAVE A NATIONAL ORGAN. Mr. Powderly and Other General Assembly

Officers Preparing for Its Issue.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.]
PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—Labor is to have a naonal organ, probably, within the next few months. At the recent General Assembly session a committee consisting of Mr. Powderly, Secretar, Litchman, Treasurer Turner and Secretary Haves of the Executive Board, were given power to acin establishing such a newspaper. Mr. Litchman, who has had editorial experience, it is thought, will become its editor. One of the committe tioned said to-day:

"A large number of our members favor a daily newspaper, and it is probable that the movement will result in a great daily at a later day. At this time the proposition is to turn the Journal of United Labor into a large weekly newspaper. In is not likely that the change will be effected for several months. A plant will have to be purchased, and many other things will have to be looked after, including the securing of a good staff of editors, business men, &c. We will not go fast. There is no doubt in my mind that the time is not far distant when a big daily paper will be published by the order. Several propositions have been made. One suggestion is that a payer be established to issue from five different cities each morning. This does not appear to be practicable. As I said before we will go slow and by the time the daily is a fact we will know just what to do. The weekly will start with a circulation of fully 20,000. I believe it will reach the 54,000 mark inside of three months. It may go far beyond that figure, as a great effort will be made in every local assembly in the order to increase the number of subscribers. The price will probably be $1 per year. We cannot go beyond that figure, as the General Assembly made that amount the limit. The paper will be published in this city." is not likely that the change will be effected for sev-

WIFE AND SISTER DIE THE SAME HOUR.

Dr. Craig Loses Two Members of His Family Almost Simultaneously.

Affliction rested heavily on Dr. James Craig, of Jersey City, yesterday, for within one hour his sis ter and his wife died in his arms. Dr. Craig is a minent physician of Jersey City, and lives at No. 297 Fourth street. His sister Jessie has for a long time made her home with the doctor the has for years been suffering from cancer. The doctor's wife, Mrs. Craig, has also been an invalid suffering from valvular disease of the heart. All that his skill could do to prolong their lives the doctor did. About 7 o'clock yeaterday morning Miss Craig died.

Soon he was summoned to snother room where his wire lay dying. Her sister-in-law's death had so affected her that her disease had been aggravated and her end nastened. In less than an hour from the time when Miss Jessie Craig died Mrs. Craig was also dead. was also dead.

Dr. Craig has a family of three daughters and a son, the latter a young man of about twenty-seven, who is a practising physician in partnership with his father.

Never Declines [From the Pittsburg Post.]

The Philadelphia papers are discussing the de-cline of beauty among the girls of that city. This discovery was made a good while ago by outsiders, but there is really no reason for making the girls feel bad by telling them about it. There is only one element in Philadelphia that never declines— her young men when asked to take a drink.
